

Russia Hurls New Charges That Delay Atomic Vote

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

Lake Success, N. Y., Dec. 30 (AP)—Soviet Russia charged bluntly today that atomic energy is still being used exclusively for production of aggressive arms and called for urgent action to outlaw atomic weapons.

Simultaneously, Russia flatly rejected the United States proposal that the veto be waived on atomic matters, attacking that suggestion as actually a revision of the United Nations charter.

Russia, in effect, reinstated its plan for controlling atomic energy. This asked the nations to outlaw atomic weapons by treaty and destroy existing stocks of bombs.

Asks Itemized Study

Immediately after Russia's position was stated by Andrei A. Gromyko, newly-appointed deputy foreign minister, Bernard M. Baruch, United States delegate, formally moved that the United States plan, incorporated in a report submitted today to the commission, be adopted as the commission's report and sent to the United Nations Security Council.

Gromyko called for an item-by-item discussion of the U. S. plan in order to make "absolutely necessary" corrections and to proceed without delay with preparation of the international convention on the prohibition of the production and use of atomic and other major weapons adaptable to mass destruction, having in mind the draft convention, submitted by the Soviet government on July 19, 1946 (this was the Russian plan for atomic control).

The United States fought powerfully today for a decision on an atomic control system which would permit no veto on the punishment of nations breaking an atomic code.

Divided On Wording

The problem was put squarely before the full United Nations Atomic Energy commission in the shape of an 80-page report which laid the ground-work of a complete system of international control and inspection advocated by the United States.

Every section of the report was approved by at least 10 delegates of the 12-member commission except the bitterly-contested provisions on the veto. The majority was said to be divided on the matter of wording, and not because of a fundamental split on the necessity of prompt, unhindered punishments.

The United States delegate, Bernard M. Baruch, went to the meeting determined to demand a vote on his contention that the word "veto" must be specifically included in the report.

Iron Springs Couple Weds On Saturday

Charles William Heilman, Iron Springs postmaster, and Maud Ellen Mickle, Iron Springs, were married Saturday at Fairfield by the Rev. Pr. Cletus A. Hauck, according to a return received today by the county clerk of courts.

Another return disclosed the marriage of Ira Stock Klinefelter, U. S. Army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Samuel Klinefelter, New Oxford R. 2 and Wanita Lee Schell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Taylor Schell, Spring Grove R. 3, on Saturday at New Oxford. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Archie C. Rohrbaugh.

COUPLE IS WED ON CHRISTMAS

Mr. and Mrs. Amos W. Stary, 125 North Stratton street, today announced the marriage of their daughter, Betty Jane, to John Francis Rosensteel, Emmitsburg. The ceremony was performed at 4 p. m. on Christmas Day in the Lutheran parsonage at Taneytown, Md., by the Rev. Glenn L. Stahl.

The couple was attended by a brother and sister-in-law of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Dale W. Stary. The bride wore a rose suit with black and white accessories. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, after which the couple went on a short wedding trip, returning Saturday night.

A graduate of Gettysburg high school with the class of 1942 the bride was employed at the Letterkenny Ordnance Depot for some time.

Mr. Rosensteel, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rosensteel, Emmitsburg, attended Emmitsburg high school and recently was discharged after three years service in the U. S. Navy. A seaman first class he served for a time in England and was stationed for some time at Camp Detrick, Frederick, Md. Since his discharge he has been working as a civilian employee at Camp Detrick in the position he held while a member of the navy.

The couple plans to reside in Emmitsburg.

LICENSED TO WED

John William Dill and Arlene Isabelle Crowl, both of Abbotstown, have secured a marriage license in Frederick.

URGENT CALL BY R. C. FOR HELP WITH SWEATERS

The Adams county Red Cross today appealed to countians to volunteer their services to make woolen sweaters for use by children overseas.

The desperate need for the warm garments for youngsters in foreign lands has caused cancellation of previously scheduled wool production. Mrs. P. J. McGlynn, production chairman, announced today, with the national Red Cross asking immediate use of all wool on hand for production of the children's sweaters. Material that had previously been scheduled to go into sweaters for the army and other wool on hand here is to be made immediately into the garments for the kiddies, Mrs. McGlynn added. Enough material is on hand to make 50 sweaters now.

To do the work additional volunteers are needed, she added, stating that the material may be obtained at the Red Cross office at any time.

Some Garments Shipped

While the sweaters were described as the most immediate need, production of other garments on the part of volunteers for the Red Cross is continuing. A recent shipment by the county chapter to a depot for overseas consignment included ten men's heavyweight bathrobes, five children's capes, five women's woolen skirts, and five girls' woolen dresses. Nearly 100 girls' blouses are being made and 300 yards of material have been received with which to make 100 children's dresses.

The need for all types of clothing is desperate, Mrs. McGlynn said, with thousands of people, adults and children, in Europe still without proper clothing or shelter.

Garments cut ready for sewing are available at the Red Cross sewing room on East High street, she said, and those who wish to sew them can obtain the materials at any time the room is open. It will be closed, as will the Red Cross office, on New Year's day, but will be open Thursday and Friday.

Charles S. Butt Services Held

Funeral services for Charles S. Butt, 53, who died Friday morning in a White Plains hospital, N. Y., were held this morning at 11 o'clock from the Bender funeral home conducted by the Rev. Howard Schley Fox. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

The pallbearers were William Himes, Donald M. Swope, John Hewitt, James Hafer, Sebastian Hafer and Edgar Nicodemus.

MISS SPANGLER, JOHN M'PHAIL WED SATURDAY

On Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church, Miss Jeanne Alma Spangler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell M. Spangler, R. 4, became the bride of John A. MacPhail, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. MacPhail, of Chester. The Rev. Howard Schley Fox performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown with a white satin bodice, net yoke trimmed with wide lace, and a full net skirt ending in a long train. Her finger tip veil was held in place by a net halo trimmed with seed pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses, sweet peas and stelia with white satin streamers. A single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom, was her only jewelry.

Mrs. Bernard S. Rehmyer, of New Freedom, Pa., sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She was groomed in apple green nylon tissue taffeta, and carried an arm bouquet of poinsettias. In her hair was an arrangement of holly.

Church Decorated

Harry Troxell, Jr., of Gettysburg, was the best man, and ushers were Robert L. Shryock, of Gettysburg, and Clyde R. Spangler, Gettysburg R. 4, a brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a gown of aqua wool with black accessories and the mother of the groom wore aqua crepe with brown accessories. Both had shoulder corsages of red roses.

Christmas greens, poinsettias and candles decorated the sanctuary of the church. On the altar were vases of white carnations, pompons and snapdragons.

Reception Held

Immediately following the ceremony a reception for relatives and friends was held in the church school rooms. Christmas greens and candles decorated the rooms. A four-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom was centered on the table for the bridal party. Miss Dorothy Andrew and Mrs. Anne Bracey presided at the tea and coffee table, in center of which was an arrangement of red and white carnations and white pompons. Members of Barkley Circle served.

The bride and groom left after the reception for a week's honeymoon to an unannounced destination, after which they will reside in Washington, Pa.

Mrs. MacPhail is a graduate of Gettysburg high school and of Thompson College in York, Pennsylvania. Until very recently she was employed as a secretary in the law offices of Swope, Brown and Swope. The groom is also a graduate of Gettysburg high school and is a veteran of World War II. At present he is a student at Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa., where he is majoring in electrical engineering.

Sharp Official Attack On Russia By House Committee

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

Washington, Dec. 30 (AP)—Charges of economic enslavement, political terrorism, religious repression, broken promises and ambitions for military power were leveled against Russia today by the special House committee on postwar economic policy.

The committee report—the sharpest official criticism of Russia on Capitol Hill since the Soviet Union went to war with Germany—demanded that the United States assert "positive leadership" in European economic affairs.

Simultaneously it asserted that if Russia actually is found to be using German war plants to rearm, the Western Allies should denounce the entire Potsdam Big Three agreement and demand that the Soviets "evacuate Germany completely."

First reaction to the committee's document came in the form of a protest against "headline hunters" by Rep. Sol Bloom (D-N. Y.), retiring chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Bloom told reporters the committee should have submitted its evidence, "if it has any" to the State and War Departments for investigation. He contended the report would do "far more harm than good" in current diplomatic negotiations.

The State Department declined any immediate comment.

The unanimous committee report offered a number of specific recommendations, among them:

1. A review of the financial aspects of American foreign policy in "order to substitute productive and self-supporting economies in ex-enemy countries for the present method of supporting them with American money while they, in turn, are being drained by Russia and France."
2. Loans to American occupation authorities through the export-import bank to start the flow of raw materials necessary for industrial production.
3. An inquiry into restrictions on the movement of American businessmen, and into the methods "by which freedom of access into foreign countries of American information agencies including books, magazines, papers and movies as well as our reporters can be facilitated."
4. A specific study of safeguarding the trade recommendations "with respect to the abuse of state trading practices, particularly by the state monopolies of nations who are not members" of the world bank, monetary fund or similar international organizations.

The committee charged Russia with failure to "keep Potsdam and other agreements," and declared that the Soviet agreement "in principle" to broaden outlines of international atomic inspection "does not guarantee performance."

NATIONAL GUARD REORGANIZATION TOLD IN ARTICLE

How Pennsylvania's National Guard is being reorganized is told by Major Robert D. Hanson, information and education officer of the 28th Division, in the first issue of "The Pennsylvania Guardsman" to be published since the war.

Major Hanson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry W. A. Hanson, college campus, and now practicing law at Harrisburg, served throughout much of the war in the European Theater of Operations, first as an anti-tank company commander and later as an information and educational officer.

Gettysburg has been offered a troop in the new Guard with enlistments to open Thursday.

"Although hampered by the usual headaches and difficulties, the recruiting drive of the Pennsylvania National Guard has placed this state near the top in the nationwide effort to effectively launch the postwar Guard," Major Hanson wrote.

Building Strength

"Actual strength of the PNG as of 30 November, 1946, was 593 officers and warrant officers and 1,772 enlisted men. This was a gain of 83 officers and 768 enlisted men since 15 September.

"Strength totals alone do not tell the story, for all eyes are on the first objective: Federal recognition of units. As of 12 December, 39 units had been granted recognition, with 50 others in process."

The first National Guard unit to be officially recognized was the 243rd AGF band, which was inspected and approved on August 29, Major Hanson relates. The band is located at Allentown. The second company to be recognized was Co. H, 110th Infantry, located at Washington, Pa.

The 690th AAA AW Battalion of Harrisburg, Lebanon and Pottsville, was the first battalion in the state to have all its components "in process" with three units recognized, one inspected and two waiting inspection, according to Major Hanson's article.

County Schoolmen At PSEA Sessions

C. P. Keefer, Biglerville; Wilson Wenk, Aspers R. 2, Dr. Ralph Seaford, county supervisor of special education; County Superintendent of Schools J. Floyd Slaybaugh, Assistant County Superintendent Dr. Robert A. Bream and Elmer M. Gruver, principal of the East Berlin schools, were among the Adams county educators who attended the Pennsylvania State Education Association convention at Harrisburg which ended Saturday.

Keefer and Wenk were the delegates from the county PSEA branch to the sessions.

INJURED IN CRASH

Charles Brown, Waynesboro, and Elmer Shockey, Blue Ridge Summit R. D. were injured Saturday night about 9 o'clock when the car in which they were riding went out of control, left the road and smashed into a tree four miles east of Emmitsburg on the Taneytown road. Both suffered lacerations and abrasions and Brown suffered a shoulder injury which was later x-rayed at the Waynesboro hospital. They were treated by Dr. W. R. Cadle, Emmitsburg, after the accident. The car was nearly demolished.

COUPLE TO WED

A marriage license was issued at the court house today to Charles Henry Pfaff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Pfaff, Littlestown, and Gertrude Wildkas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murdith Wilson, Hanover.

Visitor Lauds Xmas Lights

Gettysburg's street decorations for Christmas received high praises from a visitor.

V. W. Collins, an officer of the Rome Table corporation, Rome, N. Y., who visits throughout the eastern United States in the course of his business, told Howard C. Mittinger, Oak Ridge, with whom he visited during the holidays while enroute to Florida, that "I haven't seen any town that can compare with Gettysburg in its street decorations for Christmas in the course of all my travels—and you can quote me on that."

SCOUT 'VILLAGE' TO GET DISTRICT CAMPAIGN GIFTS

Funds to be gathered in the Black Walnut (Adams county) district of the York-Adams Boy Scout area will be used to build one complete "village" in the new Boy Scout Memorial camp to be erected on a 500-acre tract near Dillsburg.

At a special meeting of the Black Walnut committee Saturday evening at the Hotel Gettysburg, it was voted unanimously that the erection of a troop lodge and four surrounding six-man Adirondack lean-to type cabins be adopted as the goal of the camp fund campaign in the Black Walnut district which includes most of Adams county.

The "village" formed by the large lodge and the four smaller cabins would be used by Black Walnut scouts on their camping expeditions at the proposed site, it was indicated Saturday.

See Camp Plans

The "village" also shall be appropriately marked as the Black Walnut district memorial to Boy Scouts of this district, both living and dead, who served in World War II.

A prospectus of the new camp plans was shown committee members Saturday evening by N. B. Schnurman, camp fund campaign chairman for Adams county. Drawings reflecting tentative plans for the new area scout camp, which will replace outmoded camps in York and Adams counties, showed all-log construction for the lodge and cabins.

At the same session, the scout leaders voted to combine the forthcoming annual campaign for regular operating expenses of the Boy Scout organization in Adams county with the camp fund drive so that only one campaign will have to be made. Regular budget figures and camp fund campaign goals will be combined for the joint financial canvass.

Dean W. E. Tilberg, Black Walnut district chairman, presided at Saturday evening's brief meeting at which 14 scout officials were present.

College Fund Drive Points To February 10

"The Alumni division of the Gettysburg college expansion fund campaign is rounding rapidly into shape for what is hoped will be the most significant day in the history of the college, February 10, Ralph L. Minker, resident director for Ward, Wells and Dreshman, New York city, who are directing the campaign, said today.

"On this date alumni groups in every section of the world will meet to consider their pledges of loyalty and financial support to the college," Mr. Minker said.

William H. Patrick, Jr., Philadelphia, president of the Alumni association, is chairman of the alumni division. The college is seeking a minimum of $500,000 for expansion and new buildings.

Offices of the resident director are now located in Rooms 8 and 10, Hotel Gettysburg.

Reckless Driving Charge After Crash

A charge of reckless driving has been laid before Justice of the Peace David Hykes, New Oxford R. D., by state police against Daniel E. Davis, 25, York, as a result of a one-car accident Saturday evening at 6:10 o'clock.

State police said today that Davis was driving west on the New Chester-Hampton road, two miles east of New Chester, when he ran off the road and struck a telephone company pole, snapping off the pole. Damage to his car was estimated at $250 and to the United telephone pole $25. Davis suffered lacerations of the hands and body bruises.

DANCE AT EAGLES

Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will hold a New Year's Eve dance at the club-rooms on Chambersburg street Tuesday night, beginning at 9 o'clock. Music will be furnished by "Trombone Bill" and his orchestra. There will be appropriate favors for the occasion.

J. J. REX DIES SUNDAY; HURT IN ACCIDENT DEC. 17

John Jacob Rex, 79, Aspers, a retired postmaster and storekeeper at Aspers, died Sunday morning at 3:15 o'clock at the Warner hospital from injuries sustained when he was struck by a car driven by Robert L. Bupp, 21, also of Aspers, on Tuesday morning, December 17.

Mr. Rex suffered a fracture of the skull, fractures of the left arm and leg, and abrasions of the left hand and face.

Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams county coroner, announced today an inquest will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the court house.

According to state police who investigated, Rex was struck when he stepped from behind a gasoline truck into the path of the Bupp vehicle about 200 feet from the intersection in Aspers along the Center Mills road.

Services Wednesday

Mr. Rex was born and always resided in Adams county. He was a son of the late George and Sarah (Peters) Rex. The deceased was a member of the Biglerville Reformed church; Aspers fire company; Good Samaritan lodge of Masons, Gettysburg, and Montana lodge, IOOF, Benderville.

Surviving are his widow, the former Mary Eldon; one brother, Hilary, Pasadena, Calif.; one nephew, George Rex, Pasadena, and a niece, Jane Rex, Waynesboro.

Private funeral services Wednesday at 2 p. m. from the late home conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Nevin R. Frantz. Interment in the Benderville cemetery.

Friends may call at the late home Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. Please omit flowers.

WM. J. DIEHL DIES ON SUNDAY

William J. Diehl, 69, Highland township farmer, died at his home Sunday morning at 10:50 o'clock from a complication of diseases. He had been in ill health for three years and was bedfast five weeks.

Mr. Diehl was born and always resided in Adams county, a son of the late Rufus A. and Lovina (Patterson) Diehl. He was a member of the Memorial United Brethren church and the Men's Bible class.

Surviving are his widow, the former Mary E. Myers; five sisters, Mrs. Luther Beiler and Mrs. Charles Lawver, both of Gettysburg; Miss Madeline Diehl and Mrs. Orie Heckeluber, both of Arendtsville, and Mrs. Annabelle Orner, York.

Funeral services Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. from the Bender funeral home conducted by his pastor, the Rev. H. V. March, and the Rev. Ivan Naugle, Thurmont. Interment in Evergreen cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home this evening after 7 o'clock.

New Year's Eve Service Planned

A Watch Night service will be conducted in the Presbyterian church Tuesday night beginning at 11 o'clock with a 15-minute organ recital by Mrs. Albert Z. Rodgers. She will play "Evening Preludes," by Merkel; "Moderato," by Homig; "Prelude," by Bryson, and "Andante," by Gluck.

Dr. Frederick Tilberg will be the guest soloist. He will sing "Spirit of God."

The pastor, the Rev. Robert M. Hunt, will speak on the theme, "The Magic Portal."

Elks Lodge To Hold New Year's Dance

The Gettysburg Lodge of Elks will hold its annual New Year's Eve dance Tuesday evening at the lodge home on York street.

Bobby Brothers and his orchestra will furnish music for dancing from 9:30 until 1:30 o'clock. Dress is optional.

Blames Shutters For Broken Panes

Window shutters which were blown shut by the wind early this morning were blamed by borough police for broken window panes at the home of Rev. Dwight P. Putman, 237 Springs avenue. Dr. Putman reported to borough police that two panes were broken in the living room at his home and one in the dining room. Patrolman C. William Zhou investigated and blamed the shutters.

The wind Sunday night replaced the rain and fog which had made Sunday a damp and chilly day and made driving hazardous because of poor visibility Sunday night.

SEEK HUSBAND IN MURDER CASE

Bridgeport, N. J., Dec. 30 (AP)—An eleven-state police alarm was out today for John A. James, 36-year-old Socomey Vacuum oil diesel engineer, who is being sought for questioning in the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Hermine James, 35.
The badly beaten body of Mrs. James, her skull fractured and her head and face discolored, was found yesterday in a shallow grave in the back yard of their eight-room white frame home by the woman's father, Selgried Vollmer, 62, who lived with the Jameses.
Gloucester County Coroner William Hofer said Mrs. James died of a fractured or crushed skull. State Police Sgt. George Probert of the Mantua barracks said Mrs. James had been beaten to death with a blunt instrument, probably a hammer.
He said a preliminary investigation indicated that the slaying evidently took place in the kitchen. He added that the kitchen showed signs of having been cleaned up.

Mr. Kinneman, a retired farmer, was a member of St. Paul's Reformed church in New Oxford.

Stocks Edge Up On Market Today

New York, Dec. 30 (AP)—Individual stocks edged upward today while many market leaders shifted to slightly lower territory.

Fractional variations either way ruled from the start. There were occasional active flurries although dealings, for the most part, held to a quiet zone. Small declines predominated near the fourth hour.

Replacement purchasing and bidding on hopes on an early January rally tended to bolster trends to a certain extent. Year-end "cash" sales for income tax purposes were plentiful. Some skeptics regarding labor-management relations and the course of business in 1947 trimmed accounts. American Telephone was an isolated strong spot.

Villanova Priest Heads New School

Villanova, Pa., Dec. 30 (AP)—The Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, a member of the faculty of Villanova college since 1938, has been named president of a new college to be started at Andover, Mass., by the order of St. Augustine.

The very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, head of the eastern province of the order, who announced the appointment yesterday said the college, which has not yet been named, will grant degrees in liberal arts, science, business and education. It will function as a day school for about 800 male students.

Father McQuade said every effort will be made to start classes in September 1947, with only freshmen being admitted the first year.

The excavations of Pompeii have proved that olives can be preserved indefinitely when properly steeped in brine.

The olive tree does not produce profitably before its seventh year. It produces fully until its thirteenth year. It produces plentifully after that.

French Claims In Germany Opposed

Berlin, Dec. 30 (AP)—Reliable diplomatic sources predicted today that proposals for revision of Germany's western frontier, except for cession of the Saar to France, would be strongly opposed by the United States at the forthcoming German peace treaty negotiations.

It is expected, these sources said, that the United States will not only oppose France's claims to the Rhineland but will reject more modest border changes proposed by Holland and Belgium unless the countries concerned can present satisfactory proof that the people of the area concerned "genuinely desire" a change.

The position of the United States and others on the German border settlements is being outlined among the four major allied powers here for presentation to the Foreign Ministers council when it convenes in Moscow in March.

CADMAN IS ILL
Los Angeles, Dec. 30 (AP)—Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer, who was 65 Christmas Eve, was described today as seriously ill in a hospital of a heart disorder. Among his best known popular compositions are "Land of the Sky Blue Waters," and "At Dawning."
A third of the people in Travancore, a state in India, are Christians.

EXPECT TRIPPI WILL PROVIDE BOWL THRILLS

By JACK HAND
New York, Dec. 30 (AP)—A couple of guys named Charlie, Trippi and Justice, should furnish most of the individual fireworks in the major New Year's Day bowl games off the season-long statistics from the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

Trippi, the All-America from Georgia, gained 1366 yards running and passing for the unbeaten Bulldogs who bump up against North Carolina in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. He had the best total offense record of any major bowl participant and also intercepted six passes for 107 yards.

Other Ground Gainers
Herman Wedemeyer of St. Mary's who faces Georgia Tech in the Oil Bowl at Houston, Texas, wasn't too far behind Trippi in the individual yard gaining chores with Justice taking third place, Justice led in kickoff returns among the bowlers and Wedemeyer had the best record on punt returns, 397 yards in 26 runs.

Justice depended on rushing for most of his gains, picking up 943 of his 1213 yards by churning through the line an average of 7.20 yards per rush. Trippi divided his work more evenly, picking up 744 yards along the ground and 622 through the air.

Oddly enough, the bowl games that usually are loaded with the best forward passers in the nation, will show only two of the top 20 in season rankings. John Rauch of Georgia had the best mark with 48 completions and Y. A. Tittle of the Louisiana state team that faces Arkansas in the Dallas Cotton Bowl was next, making connections with 45 tosses.

Although he wasn't in the top 20, Ernie Case of UCLA, Illinois' foe in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, hit his receivers with 42 passes good for a total of 868-yards. Case has the fifth best offensive record among the top bowl stars, gaining 907 yards in all.

BOWL BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)
Sugar
New Orleans, Dec. 30 (AP)—You can get some Sugar Bowl football tickets if you can spare some good whiskey, and you can get three new automobile tires for as many tickets. If you have an extra room here with twin beds, you could probably rent it for the next four days for a pound of uranium a day.

The city police and U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue have warned against cash scalping of tickets for the New Year's Day football contest between Georgia and North Carolina, but the tickets have a high value on a new barter market which doesn't fit under the ban.

The classified advertisements of the New Orleans newspapers are carrying some attractive swap offers, working both ways.

Orange
Miami, Fla., Dec. 30 (AP)—Rice and Tennessee today began tapering off their meeting in the Orange Bowl Wednesday, while hundreds of supporters of both teams flocked to Miami by train, plane and automobile.

Both teams appeared to be nearing their peak for the game.

Coach Jess Neely sent his Rice Owls through a lengthy drill on Flamingo Field at Miami Beach while Coach Bob Neyland's Vols worked out in 82-degree weather at Miami high school on the mainland.

Cotton
Dallas, Tex., Dec. 30 (AP)—Louisiana State's football squad moved into Dallas today and couldn't raise an argument with anyone over who's going to win the Cotton Bowl game come Wednesday.

One of the Tigers' staunchest backers appeared to be Coach John Barnhill of Arkansas, the team that will furnish LSU opposition in the New Year's Day classic.

Oil
Houston, Tex., Dec. 30 (AP)—Georgia Tech and St. Mary's of California, two veteran bowl teams, today faced a Texas Blue Norther as they began final preparations for their New Year's Day Oil Bowl tilt.

The Galloping Gaels are rated underdogs by at least two touchdowns.

Commission Bans Three Pa. Fighters

Pittsburgh, Dec. 30 (AP)—Suspension of two Pennsylvania fighters and the placing of a third on the unavailable list was announced over the week-end by the State Boxing commission.

Commissioner John Montgomery said Eddie Caplan was suspended indefinitely for failing "to put forth his best efforts" in a recent Johnstown bout and for failing to attend a hearing. The other suspended fighter, Al Caulteri, was given a 60-day suspension and told to "rest up." He had been knocked out in his last three fights.

Placed on the unavailable list indefinitely was Kid Teeko. Montgomery said the McKesport fighter was not in proper physical condition because of a long lay-off.

Moose Bowlers In Win Over Firemen

The Gettysburg Moose bowlers added another triumph to their list Sunday afternoon by defeating the Gettysburg firemen two games to one.

Paul Miller paced the victors with a total score of 555 and was also high man for one match with 223.

A return match will be staged between the teams next Sunday.

W AND J TEAM HOLDS REUNION

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 30 (AP)—Seven members of one of the most colorful teams in Rose Bowl history—the rollicking Washington and Jefferson eleven which played the full 60 minutes without a substitution and held a vaunted California "wonder team" to a scoreless tie—gathered today to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the game.

This was the underdog outfit that came west for the New Year's Day engagement in 1922 and outgained, outpassed and outsmarted that "wonder team." They hauled 'em and mauled 'em from pillar to post; they left the field with a moral if not a real victory. And they wrote one of the funniest anecdotes in Rose Bowl annals.

Greetings For "Brick"
The moment when California's great end, Brick Muller, came onto the field—a sloppy, muddy field—in a jersey fresh and bright.

His rival end, Little Herb Kopf, greeted him effusively, and supposedly said, "So you're the great Brick Muller. We are humble. We are impressed."

And then, to the awe and surprise of staid Rose Bowl officials, Kopf proceeded to wipe his muddy hands on Muller's bright jersey. Charley West followed and did the same, and then the entire president team gathered around and joined in.

Records show that Muller had a bad day that afternoon. But so did the entire Berkeley aggregation.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, Dec. 30 (AP)—One way to keep kids from becoming juvenile delinquents, suggests George Corcoran, is to take a club to them—a golf club, that is. . . . The nation's golf clubs are shy some 3,000,000 caddies and it's a certainty that lugging somebody's golfing weapons around a course will keep a boy off the streets. . . . According to Corcoran, president of the Carolina section of the P.G.A. There are at least 5,000,000 golfers and only 2,000,000 boys to tote their clubs for generous fees, plus tips. . . . But let George tell about some of the advantages.

LETTING GEORGE DO IT
"Caddying is healthful, pleasant and profitable work," says Corcoran (as distinguished from playing golf when you lose your temper over a couple of bad shots and pay plenty for that doubtful privilege).

"Every club now has provided facilities such as caddy house, game rooms, showers, etc. Some have three or four golf holes for the kids to use, meals served; there usually are competent caddy masters, some even teach school or are school coaches; the average caddy works about three hours a day and while waiting his turn can participate in various sports. . . . In Chicago there is the Evans caddy scholarship fund, through which nearly 100 boys have been sent to college; the winner of the National Caddy Tournament receives a college scholarship. . . . At a number of hotel resorts caddies can spend two or three months in caddy camps and they seem to enjoy themselves as much as the guests who pay high prices at the hotels. . . . Sounds good, yet some people go in for things like sports writing."

MONDAY MATINEE
Eddie Walker has taken over the management of Danny Rosati, a good Newark, N. J., middleweight. . . . Among the numerous offers that are taking Charley Trippi's mind off his books these days is one to become an assignment football coach at Georgia. . . . Reports keep drifting in that Biff Jones is slated to become big six conference commissioner, but Biff's term as West Point athletic director runs until June 1, 1948. . . . Bill Jeffrey, Penn State soccer coach, has had at least one all American booter in each of his 21 years of coaching.

DOTS ALL BROTHERS
As a courtesy to visiting basketball teams at Indiana, the Sphinx club, honorary society headed by footballer Pete Pihos, will form chains from the visitors' dressing room to the fieldhouse floor. . . . Then drape a ball and chain around the visitors, we suppose. . . . Three southern sports editors, Zipp Newman, Ed Danforth and Fred Newsum, have been mentioned as successors to Billy Evans as southern association head. . . . Latest word is that they'd all rather write than be president.

House Rules Seat
Again Open To Penna.

Washington, Dec. 30 (AP)—Pennsylvania may slide up its old chair to the House Rules Committee table, come the new Republican dominated Congress.

The Keystone state hasn't been represented on this powerful group since the lush GOP days of the pre-Roosevelt era. Then Harry C. Ransley, Philadelphia Republican, was a member. But that was a decade ago. During the New Deal regime no Pennsylvania Democrat was on it.

But with the state back in the GOP fold by a 28-to-5 margin, it has been told, according to the ear-to-the-keyhole boys, that its old Rules Committee seat is open and waiting.

The House Rules Committee packs a wallop. By deciding when and under what conditions a bill shall be considered, the group frequently exercises a virtual life-or-death hold on legislation. It runs the House the way a traffic cop runs an intersection.

BISHOP LEECH ATTACKS PIAA ATHLETIC CODE

Harrisburg, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Most Rev. George L. Leech, D.D., bishop of the Harrisburg Roman Catholic diocese, said today that a rule by the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic association governing athletic competition with non-member schools "is ill-advised and should not be permitted to stand in its present form."

Bishop Leech made the statement in commenting on the PIAA rule requiring, after December 1, 1947, that any non-member school engaging in athletic competition with a member school shall conform to the association's eligibility code.

Bishop Leech, commenting on the action taken by the PIAA board of control at its meeting here Friday, said:

"As I understand the position taken it amounts to this: an American boy who, because of his religious convictions and those of his parents, attends the only religious high school available to him, is to be penalized by being hindered from engaging in any athletic contests with certain of his fellow citizens."

"The PIAA, a private organization, thus arbitrarily calls in question the free exercise of a basic right of American citizens."

"It is impossible to find any adequate motive for enforcing a regulation so patently undemocratic and so subversive of the friendly unity which our communities and our nation urgently need in these times."

"I submit, therefore, to a fair-minded public and to the appropriate authorities that the regulation is ill-advised and should not be permitted to stand in its present form."

Shamrocks To Meet Merchants Tonight

The Gettysburg Merchants will meet the unbeaten Waynesboro Shamrocks dribblers on the Hotel Gettysburg annex floor this evening. In a game played several weeks ago at Waynesboro the Merchants were defeated 53-28.

At 7 o'clock the American Legion and Plaza Sweets of the county cage league will clash in an exhibition game.

CAA To Announce Grants To Airports

Washington, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration plans to announce in about a week the first grants to local communities under a seven-year airport construction program.

An agency official said today the CAA will announce on January 7 a partial list of the sponsors whose applications for airport funds have been approved for this fiscal year, which ends June 30.

That list will be followed in about a week by the first draft of a survey of the nation's airport needs, for which Congress allocated $2,975,000 in the 1947 Commerce Department appropriations bill.

The final draft of the survey, which will serve as a guide for the eventual expenditure of $500,000,000 over the seven-year period for which funds have been authorized, will not be completed for another year.

Officials say they do not expect a great deal of airport work to be undertaken this year, probably none before spring.

Labor and material shortages and the needs of the veterans; housing program will be a handicap, they say, although such problems do not directly concern the federal government. It makes grants on a matching basis—generally fifty-fifty—and leaves construction details to the sponsors and their contractors.

The amounts which the various states will receive over the seven-year period include: New Jersey, $6,089,775; Pennsylvania, $16,094,883.

Americans Sweep Davis Cup Series

By GAYLE TALBOT
Melbourne, Dec. 30 (AP)—Jack Kramer and Gardnar Mulloy completed the rout of Australia's Davis cup defenders today with smashing victories in the two final singles matches, thereby giving the United States a clean sweep of the series and establishing America's supremacy in the post-war tennis world.

Kramer, top-ranking member of the American team, battered the veteran John Bromwich into submission in straight sets, 8-6, 6-4, 6-4, while Mulloy bowled over Dinny Pails 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

In the five matches comprising the challenge round, which got under way here last Thursday, the American invaders lost only two sets, giving a demonstration of superlative play and setting a mark that other nations may find hard to match in many years. It was the first time since Great Britain blanked the United States in 1935 that the challenge round had been decided by a 5-0 score.

CAPS WIN TWO OVER WEEK-END

(By The Associated Press)
Only the Indianapolis Caps were able to take advantage of a week-end opportunity to gain a full four points in the American hockey league despite a nine-game program.

Last night's 5-3 win for Indianapolis over Philadelphia following Saturday's 4-2 verdict over Hershey moved the Caps into undisputed possession of second place in the Western division ahead of Pittsburgh which trimmed Providence, 2-1 Saturday but was idle Sunday.

Buffalo's six-game winning streak was marred by a 3-3 tie with St. Louis after they had scored a 6-3 edge over Cleveland Saturday. The Bisons came from behind in the final period with goals by Freddie Hunt and Tommy Cooper to the delight of 9,799 spectators.

New Haven and Springfield swapped wins over the weekend, the Springfield Indians trouncing the Ramblers last night, 5-3 in a rough and ready fray after bowing Saturday to the same team, 1-0.

Cleveland lengthened its western half over Indianapolis to seven points by flattening the Providence Reds, 7-3, a loss that dropped the Rhode Island Reds into fourth place in the eastern half back of Springfield. Lou Trudel, veteran forward, led the winners' attack with two goals.

No games are scheduled tonight.

BLUE-GRAY WON BY SOUTHERNERS

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 30 (AP)—The Southern Rebels could relax today on a five-to-three margin of wins in the annual Blue-Gray inter-sectional series with picked northern teams, thanks mainly to Alabama's Harry Gilmer and Mississippi State's Shorty McWilliams.

The southern squad trounced the Blue team 20 to 13 here Saturday in the 1946 renewal of the classic as 22,500 fans looked on.

Gilmer, outstanding defensively as well as an attack spearhead, clinched the south's victory by a 41-yard scoring pass to Duke's Kelly Mote in the fourth quarter. He had set up a third period score with a pass interception.

McWilliams made both the other touchdowns on running plays. A 24-yard pass from Penn's Carmen Falcone to Bill Sullivan of Villanova gave the Northerners their score in the second period. They tallied again in the final quarter on Falcone's pass to Robert Walters of Penn State.

Lumber production figures for 1946 show an increase for the first time since 1942.

EDWARD MARTIN GOES ON STAGE OF U.S. AFFAIRS

By MARTIN BRACKBILL
Harrisburg, (AP)—Pennsylvania's governor, Edward Martin, enters the U. S. Senate at completion of his term as chief executive with well-wishers predicting even bigger things for him in 1948.

Washington-bound on a wave of Republican votes, Martin was virtually assured as the year ended of GOP state organization backing as a "favorite son" for president in the next national convention for the nation's top office—if he wants it.

G. Mason Owlett, Republican national committeeman and a key GOP leader, as long ago as last March boomed Martin as a Republican presidential candidate in 1948.

Two Obligations
And in powerful GOP quarters in and out of the Keystone state, the end-going governor has been marked down as the man to watch in the next two years.

"I go to Washington to represent the state of Pennsylvania and I carry with me two obligations," Martin has stated. "First, to serve the interests of the state of Pennsylvania, and second, to serve the interests of all the people of these United States."

But to the question of his eligibility in 1948, he has said "I have made my last campaign."

Many Pa. Honors
The first Pennsylvania governor to be elected to the U. S. Senate by popular vote, Martin is a Republican of the old school who has never strayed from the straight and narrow path of party allegiance.

Victorious at the polls in a half dozen or more state-wide campaigns, Martin has held practically every honor his home state can bestow.

Elected governor in 1942, he became the Keystone state's first wartime executive with military experience and throughout the conflict subordinated strictly civilian concerns to the needs of the war. He fended off repeated requests for special sessions of the state Legislature during the 1946 campaign on grounds that problems cited by those favoring new laws could only be solved in Washington.

The U. S. Veterans' Administration estimates it will have 159,000 medical cases to care for in 1950.

New Portal Suit To Ask Half Billion

Philadelphia, Dec. 30 (AP)—A $200,000,000 portal-to-portal pay suit, largest action of its kind filed by any union in the nation, has been entered in U. S. District Court here by attorneys who indicated the amount may reach $500,000,000.

The petition, filed by a battery of attorneys who claimed they represented 13,000 CIO-United Steelworkers employed by the Bethlehem Steel corporation in 23 of the firm's plants, states that each worker spent between an hour and an hour and a half each working day since passage of the Federal Wage and Hour Law in 1938, going to and from his job. This, the attorneys maintained in their suit, included time spent in punching clocks and performing other duties not counted as working time.

The battery of attorneys, headed by Lee Pressman, general CIO counsel, said they expected 37,000 other CIO members to join in on the claim. This would boost the claim to approximately a half billion dollars.

Crippled Prisoner Escapes Hospital

Harrisburg, Dec. 30 (AP)—A man, who broke both legs last September in a futile attempt to escape from the Dauphin county jail, eluded hospital attendants last night and hobbled away from the institution with the aid of crutches.

Chief of Police Oscar L. Blough identified the man as Etter N. Houser, 53, Middletown R. D. 1, and said city and state police were looking for the fugitive.

Houser had been treated at Harrisburg hospital since both ankles were broken in a fall from the jail wall in the attempted escape. Attendants said, after he obtained crutches, he was permitted to go about the ward but failed to return to his bed last night.

The jail listed him as awaiting trial on charges of issuing checks without sufficient funds and forgery.

RAPID REPAINTING

Santa Cruz, Calif., (AP)—T. H. Campbell rubbed his eyes in amazement when he awoke. His frame house—which had been gleaming white—had become a brilliant orange red overnight. Dr. John O. Rafferty, Santa Cruz health officer, explained: Hydrogen sulphide swamp gases from a nearby lagoon had mingled with the lead in the white paint.

RELIEF COSTS 'CUT TO BONE' BY LOW FUNDS

By MARTIN BRACKBILL
Harrisburg, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Public Assistance Department, which has kept relief costs at a lower level than most large industrial states, pared expenses to the bone today until the 1947 Legislature can provide additional funds for grants to needy persons.

Only $10,000,000 was left in the relief fund December 1 against expenses running more than $5,000,000 a month and Secretary Robert P. Wray said present funds cannot last beyond January 31 even after every possible economy has gone into effect.

The new Legislature organizes January 7 but speaker-nominee Franklin H. Lichtenwalter said there are no present plans to rush through a deficiency appropriation until after Governor-elect James H. Duff is inaugurated January 21.

At least another $23,000,000 will be needed to carry out the program until the end of the biennium May 31.

Wray said department data shows "public dependency in Pennsylvania is lower than in most other large industrial states," and that there were only 17 cases per 1,000 population in Pennsylvania in October against the average of 22 for the states of California, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Wisconsin.

On the other hand, public relief grants cost only 72 cents a month per capita in Pennsylvania in October against the average of 89 cents for the other industrial states, with California leading with $1.53 and New Jersey trailing with 33 cents.

"Although the relatively low level of public dependency is reflected in the low per capita costs, the other contributing factor is the level of assistance grants," Wray said. In October, Pennsylvania's average monthly general assistance grant per case was $37.35 against the 10-state average of $45.67 and the top grant of $56.06 given in New York.

Out of The Past

From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Death of Judge McClean: The Harrisburg papers of Wednesday announced the painful intelligence of the sudden death, on that morning of the Hon. Wm. McClean, a resident of that borough, but a native of Adams county, and for many years a respectable citizen of Gettysburg and associate judge. He was engaged in purchasing marketing in the market-house, when he suddenly dropped down and was carried into the Washington hotel, where he soon expired without any signs of consciousness. The cause of his death was supposed to be an affection of the heart. He was in the 68th year of his age.

The mournful intelligence was promptly telegraphed to his son (Hon. Moses McClean) at Washington, who left immediately for Harrisburg, to pay the last tribute of filial affection to the remains of a revered parent.

Married: On Wednesday evening, the 23d inst., by the Rev. E. V. Gerhart, Mr. John Black, of Baltimore, to Miss Rebecca Troxel, of this borough.

On the 24th inst., by the Rev. J. C. Smith, Mr. Rufus C. Swope, to Miss Evelyn C. Forrest, all of Adams county.

On the 25th inst., by the Rev. Charles Witmer, Mr. John Fieger, of Abbotstown, to Miss Caroline, daughter of Joseph Kepner, Esq., of Berwick township.

On the 24th inst., by the Rev. John Ulrich, Mr. Jeremiah Taughnbaugh, of New Chester, to Miss Ann Maria Minch, of Menallen, both of this county.

Fatal Accident: We are informed that Mrs. Eliza Conover, of Mountjoy township, fell down the cellar steps at her residence on Monday of last week, fracturing her skull and dying shortly after. She was a member of the Taneytown Lutheran church and bore an excellent Christian character. She was in the 60th year of her age.

Cold: Wednesday and Thursday of last week were excessively cold. In Gettysburg the mercury sank to 7° below zero, being the coldest day we have had in some years. Telegrams from different parts of the country represent the cold spell as unusually severe.

MAGIC MIAMI

It is now over a quarter of a century since I first came to the then little city of Miami, as a guest of my friend Donahay, cartoonist for the Cleveland Plain Dealer. There were less than twenty thousand people in the city at that time, and you could almost sit on one of the front porches that lined Biscayne Boulevard and throw your line into the bay, with anticipation in your mind!

Each year, until the war years, after that first visit, I have returned. Miami became my second home. I once got a nice waterfront room on the river, near the old Royal Palm Hotel, for ten dollars a week! It's all changed now. Great buildings tower at that same spot today. A great and beautiful park now takes the place of much of the bay that used to be the water line in those days and the sky line of buildings now remind you of a miniature New York City.

Miami Beach was then but a small settlement. Only one hotel was located on Lincoln Road, and the old wooden bridge, named for Mr. Collins, whose vision for Miami Beach never wavered, was the only path to this now enchanted land. My friend Ed Wheelan, the cartoonist, and myself rented a small frame house for one season, near the Fisher Casino. Years later, when the great hurricane swept away so much of the construction at the beach, this little house still remained but today the very spot is lost, smothered by beautiful hotels and apartments that mass Collins Avenue.

I have witnessed the creation and growth of Miami Beach, almost from its first dream, and seen it rise from a swamp to a great and prosperous city and home reserve, so beautiful, with its flowered gardens and exquisite homes that no word can adequately express its creation but that one—magic! And now the mecca for endless numbers from all over the earth. All of this the culmination of one man's will, courage, and vision—Carl G. Fisher. The man is now gone—but the city that he visioned, remains. To that man we owe an undying gratitude. Let us not forget that.

I think of Carl Fisher as I sit at my little noiseless typewriter in a lovely penthouse apartment bordering this ever-singing blue Atlantic Ocean, watching the poetic clouds by day and night, listening to the mocking birds, reading, writing these talks, and grateful to God for the privilege.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "A New Year Prayer"

THE PASSING YEAR
The year is old; a few more hours
And it is done with bickering powers.

With human failure and success,
And all man's innate selfishness.

A few more hours of life, and then
The Old Year leaves this world of men.

Forever more to be a date
Of human dealings, small or great.

A few more hours Old Year to run,
Then just the tale of all we've done.

The record brief, where will be seen
How strong and weak our age has been.

OPPORTUNITY TO BLAST RUSSIAN ACTIONS MISSED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP) — The United States passed up last week an opportunity to blast Russian conduct in China.

It chose instead to dismiss lightly an incident which only a little while ago might have been the subject of considerable diplomatic huffing and puffing.

The state department's attitude gives more than usual meaning to the forced departure of an American ship from Soviet-controlled Dairen 10 days ago.

Enough For Complaint

The ship went there to deliver mail and supplies to the American consul general. It had Soviet permission to enter and remain 48 hours. It took along an American business man and two newspapermen, and American authorities negotiated for permission for them to enter Dairen without prior clearance from Moscow.

This permission was refused. That alone might have been the subject of complaint by American officials here if they had wanted to let the world know that they do not like the way the Russians are running things in Dairen.

In the course of their unsuccessful negotiations the American authorities at Dairen kept the navy ship there more than the specified 48 hours.

Upheld Russians

A two-hour extension was granted by a Russian port officer. Toward the end of that time this officer reminded the American authorities they would have to leave in 20 minutes. Otherwise, he said, he could not be responsible for the consequences.

The state department could have protested that the Russian authorities had acted in an unfriendly manner by delivering a virtual ultimatum.

But what the department actually did was uphold the legal right of the Russians to order the ship out. A department spokesman said, in fact, that there was no ultimatum in any sense of the word.

He explained a subordinate Russian official was friendly enough to grant the two-hour extension and simply stated a fact in advising the ship he could not be further responsible if it overstayed its time.

The department did say it hoped the Russians and Chinese eventually would make arrangements for the Chinese to take over administration of Dairen from the Soviet military authorities. But it disclaimed any American right to intervene in that situation.

None of this appears to signify much change in American policy toward Russia. Sec. Byrnes has defined that policy as one of firmness and patience. What the Dairen incident does seem to indicate is more emphasis on patience and less on firmness.

Diplomatic officials consider this to be in line with the improvement in Russo-American relations achieved in the New York meetings of the United Nations and Big Four Foreign Ministers Council.

Two Conclusions

Two other conclusions also may be drawn: 1. Washington authorities were in no rush to support the action of naval officials in the western Pacific in sending the American business man and two newsmen to Dairen without prior Moscow clearance.

2. There is no Soviet to believe that any local Soviet authorities such as those in Dairen can or will allow any Americans to move about in their zones until Moscow approves.

Christmas Berries Provide Plant Seed

When the Christmas holly wreath is ready for discard remove the pulp from the berries and sow the seeds in pots or pans filled with sandy garden soil to which a little acid peat-moss is added. You may space the seed quite close together because germination usually is not plentiful. Cover them about half an inch deep and sink the pots flush with the rim in a shaded garden spot.

Do not put them in a particularly sheltered spot because alternate freezing and thawing are needed for the seeds to come to life. When spring arrives look at them once a week to see what results you have had. They grow very slowly but may be transplanted to their permanent garden location when about three or four inches tall.

WINTER CARE OF CACTI

Give the cacti a sunny position if possible and during the winter allow the soil to become dry before watering. Spring is the best time to repot if necessary, using a porous soil mixture in a well drained container.

chaplain of the House of Representatives and others.

Rev. Mr. Harpster will leave with Rev. Unangst for India on the 6th of January. He is about twenty-eight years of age and served during the late war as a captain in the Union army. . . . Starting Early Winter Chicks

Farmers and suburban persons who have adequate buildings and equipment usually find a small brood of chicks started in early January a profitable investment. And while this idea may at first glance seem somewhat risky, it offers inducements worth consideration. This year there are additional incentives.

Brooder and poultry housing equipment necessary to handle chicks, either hatched by incubator at home or bought as day-old chicks from hatcheries, is seldom used except for a few weeks in the spring. It stands idle the rest of the year. If such equipment can be employed to lengthen its season of usefulness, a greater profit can, of course, be obtained from the investment. Early winter chicks offer such an opportunity.

Another and important factor is found in bird health where chicks are started around the first of the year. If the brooder house and stove are suitable and are properly operated, little danger is incurred from low temperatures. In fact, it is probable that cold, windy, damp weather encountered by March and April chicks is a greater menace than low temperatures in early January. But more definite is the health factor in the insurance that most common chick diseases and parasites are dormant in winter. For example, intestinal worms depending on certain insects to complete their cycle are wholly absent from the early winter chick picture.

Again there are usually plentiful supplies of poultry feed available at this time of the year, both commercial and home grown feeds. And prices, from the absence of a highly competitive buyer's market, are likely to favor the poultry raiser.

Broilers raised from the early January brood are ready to gain advantage of the Easter market. This year there is, as suggested above, added incentives. These arise logically from our general meat situation.

High pork prices after government restrictions were removed from fettering the free operation of the law of supply and demand brought a maximum number of animals to market. The same factor applied to beef cattle, calves, sheep and lambs. As a result, expected and experienced, poultry meat prices declined through October and November. But an opposite trend is likely during March and April when broilers from the early winter chick brood are going to market.

There are prospects that pork and beef supplies will be greatly reduced by spring, with prices comparatively higher than they would have been had the flow of animals to slaughter over the last three months been normal. Thus, broilers will find a more favorable market in the spring.

And of course, pullets from early winter broods fit well into the farm plan. They come into production in midsummer when older hens are slumping into their annual molts and egg prices advance. Large-scale additions of pullets at that time of the year would not prove wise. But the ones added from the January chick program may furnish the flock reinforcements needed when the annual spring flush of laying begins to recede. The risk is not great; prospects for profit are favorable. And available time for proper care is less occupied than later when spring duties are crowding.

Growing Convallarias Indoors

For the benefit of those who do not recognize the floral name Convallaria, it is the old favorite among fragrant flowers, Lily-of-the-Valley. It is often over-looked in seed and nursery catalogues because it is listed under this botanical name. But it remains a useful and appreciated indoor blooming plant as well as one of the better and harder outdoor ornamentals.

It is difficult, as many growers know, to force Lily-of-the-Valley indoors from dormant roots taken up from the outdoor bed. In fact, this is not the proper method. Beginners are advised to buy "pips" from local florists and nurseries. These are grown especially for greenhouse and indoor forcing. They are actually dormant clumps with

HOLIDAY PLANT REQUIRES CARE

Poinsettias, cyclamens, azaleas, Jerusalem cherries and other Christmas plants will retain their freshness and beauty longer if cared for with understanding. Try to approximate the ideal conditions under which they were grown. Dry air is injurious to the health of Christmas plants, so pans of water placed on the radiators will add needed moisture to the air. Fresh air is important to the plants, but drafts should be avoided.

Overwatering causes poinsettia leaves to turn yellow and drop. Never let the pot stand in a saucer of water. The plant needs sun. Do not place it too close to the window, however, as the roots are susceptible to cold, and if chilled the flowers will drop.

The azalea should be kept as cool as possible, but must get plenty of sunlight. As the plant has a mass of fibrous roots which new shoots developed.

One of the better ways of using pips is to pot four to six in a six-inch pot, firming the soil well and watering to render the roots safely in contact with the soil. Then place the pot in a sunny window, as no dark-room treatment is necessary to stimulate root growth, as is needed with the Dutch bulbs. One of the few points on which errors can be made in handling Lily-of-the-Valley pips in this way is too deep covering. The tip should be barely covered after the pot soil settles.

If the pots enjoy a sunny window, preferably a southern exposure to gain the benefits of all-day sunshine, flowers should appear in about four to five weeks. Room temperature should be kept no higher than the lower 70's.

As plenty of moisture is needed to induce continued top growth it is wise to cover the soil surface with peat moss to prevent excessive evaporation. The room temperature may be maintained slightly higher before blooms open than after.

Few other flowers surpass this old favorite for fragrance. Here is one of the several reasons why Lily-of-the-Valley merits wider use in outdoor roles. Too, this is one of its claims for a place among indoor plants over winter.

Outdoor beds may be started in late fall from divisions from established clumps. Or, if transplanting is done on a mild day in late February, the transfer may be made at that time with a fair degree of success assured. Pips may be planted outdoors in late fall or early spring. The time factor is determined by the plant's habit of starting growth very early in the spring.

Lily-of-the-Valley thrives in neglected, out-of-way nooks where few other ornamentals will grow. Even on the north sides of walls or buildings in all-day shade or where it must compete with roots of shrubs and trees it usually does well. But of course, it reaches its perfection of beauty and fragrance when given a deeply mellow, well drained loam in a sunny border where it need not overcome the handicaps of shade and competition from other plants.

No lime, wood ashes or similar alkalinizing materials should be used in preparing the soil, as Lily-of-the-Valley demands or prefers an acid soil reaction. Bone meal worked through the soil before planting is beneficial in most cases.

Thinning and replanting is necessary every few years, else the beds will become matted with plants from the root spreading. It is from properly spaced plants that the finest blooms grow.

Garden Activities For Early January

To avert the ravages of the European corn borer, cornstalks should not be used as winter protection of shrubs. Make sure they are burned.

Fleshy or tuberous rooted plants, such as peonies, eremurus, dicentras, delphiniums, hellebores, etc., that are not planted deeply are safer if given a light covering of litter when hard freezing starts, especially if they are newly planted. This will prevent injury to the foliage in early spring.

Cover the ground where fall-

draw up the water quickly, it needs regular watering.

The Jerusalem cherry requires a moist soil and atmosphere. It is susceptible to injury from coal or illuminating gas, which causes the leaves to turn yellow and drop.

sown seeds are planted to prevent rains from washing them away. Save ashes from the fireplace, furnace or stove for next season's vegetable garden. Hard wood ashes are valuable for fertilizing and fine hard-coal ashes for lightening heavy soils.

House plants brought in from the garden should have overcome the setback caused by their transfer by now. When new growth starts give them an application of a complete plant food. Watch for insect pests.

The combined British and American zones in Germany are about the size of Minnesota.

COLD WEATHER AHEAD IN U.S.

(By The Associated Press) The nation could look forward today to a continued influx of Siberian air with the U. S. Weather Bureau's promise that it would be the better part of a week before sub zero temperatures moderate appreciably.

"There's a lot of weather around," the forecasters said, "it's settling down pretty well all over the country and behind it is a lot more of the same air—with temperatures in parts of Canada as low as 35 and 40 below zero."

"There'll be some moderation in about two days, but even so, it will remain below normal most of this week."

They explained the storm area originated in Siberia, "and moved down the North Alaska route, the Yukon Valley and due south through the Dakotas to Texas. Along about the Ohio Valley it bumped into the warm Gulf air and pushed underneath. The moisture in this Gulf air just naturally fell through, which accounts for the snow, sleet, and bad conditions."

Those promoted out of the Children's division into the Junior division will be presented with Bibles at the 10:30 a. m. service. Service preparatory to Holy Communion will also be held at this time. Choir rehearsal will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. The Consistory and the Women's Guild will meet Thursday at 7:30 o'clock, instead of Wednesday, New Year's Day.

Preparatory service and Holy Communion will be held Sunday at 9 a. m. in St. Luke's Reformed church, it has been announced by Rev. John C. Brumbach, pastor.

The Ocker-Snyder Post No. 321, American Legion, Littlestown, will hold a New Year's party Tuesday night, starting at 8 p. m. There will be dancing and other entertainment, and turkey sandwiches and other refreshments. The affair will be in charge of the Social Committee, composed of Clarence J. Krichen, Jr., and George Hornberger; and the house committee, consisting of Wilbur E. Mackley, James Fager, Charles B. Mummert, Paul Wolff, and Wayne C. Arnold.

The funeral of Mrs. John W. Miller, Straban township, was held Saturday afternoon from the J. W. Little and Son Funeral home, Littlestown. The pallbearers were five sons and a son-in-law: Lloyd E. Herbert H. Melvin G. Glenn T. and Eugene H. Miller; and Lawrence W. Guise. Rev. Nevin Prantz, Arendtsville, and Rev. H. W. Sternat, Biglerville, officiated. Burial was made in Bender's church cemetery.

DANCE ON THE DESERT
By Florence Theel

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 4
Whatever Bert expected, the Marylanders' affair in the old-fashioned, plain-decked hotel, ballroom certainly wasn't it. All ages, professions and nationalities seemed represented. It all seemed like a small-town "sociable" on an extravagant scale.

Paul nudged his brother Bert, as the gray-haired master-of-ceremonies in a youthful Norfolk jacket, wise-cracked through a megaphone. "Let's start our community sing with Let Me Call You Sweetheart—and let's put some heart into it, folks!"

"Right out of the corner, brother," Paul whispered. "No mistake." "Corn's healthy," Bert grinned back.

The well-dressed man in front of them turned around and smiled approvingly. He smiled, also, at Bert's mother, who looked very handsome in an asher-of-roses lace dress, and feather hair ornaments.

The club, Ellen had said, began as a neighborhood group collecting clothes for refugees, but had rapidly expanded. It had given blood, sold war bonds, even bought a Red Cross ambulance. Pridelively the emcee reported, now, that it had filled its quota of five hundred used phonograph records for army and navy hospitals.

"You win, Bert," Paul admitted sportingly. "This brand of corn's okay!"

"And now, folks," the dapper emcee shouted, "our president, Captain Martyn, is going to introduce his distinguished cousin, who is visiting here from Terre Haute, Indiana."

The man in front looked surprised, but let himself be taken to the stage by a florid gentleman who looked like Wendell Willkie, and was ceremoniously presented as "Mr. Curtis Halliday, a Lion and an Elk, and the vice-president of the Terre Haute Trust Company. My cousin is also the winner," the captain slyly stated, "of several very beautiful young cups for waltzing."

The ladies giggled. Mr. Halliday said a few gracious words, then looked a little startled, as the pianist began to play "Back Home in Indiana" for his benefit, and the crowd gaily took it up.

The program, provided by friends and members, got under way. And how very different from the U.S.O. shows the boys were used to! Six teenage tap dancers in Irish costumes, a juggler, and a chubby child who sang "Gay Nineties" favorites in a trailing velvet gown. Then the emcee called upon the boys.

"And now, friends, the three sons of our own Lola McLane, just back from overseas, are going to give us a little music."

The boys stood up, bowed self-consciously, and went up on the stage, where Paul's drums, hung with gadgets for sound effects, and Bert's saxophone, had already been carried. And, with Eddy at the piano, they contributed some exciting swing, that brought down the house. They gave the crowd an encore, then were followed on the bill by the darkly handsome Tony Perrelli, whose flashing smile and Caruso-like tenor, all but laid the ladies in the aisle. Then the chairs were pushed back to the walls, and tables loaded with refreshments were rolled in.

Ellen came over with two pretty brunettes in pastel evening dresses—Thelma Reeves and Helene Woods. Thelma beamed on Paul.

"Your music was wonderful! Go—ing to play again, for dancing?"

Paul looked at his brothers, smiled engagingly. "Might, if we were sweetly asked to."

Captain Martyn bustled over, shaking hands and thanking them. "They'd play again for dancing," Thelma said naively, "if you asked them sweetly, Captain." Everybody laughed.

"Splendid! Very generous, I'm sure!" The captain presented his cousin, then hurried to inform the emcee.

Mr. Halliday praised the club, the program, the Southern California climate. "After two weeks of summer in January, Captain Martyn has persuaded me to stay till spring."

"And join our club, we hope," Mrs. McLane said eagerly.

Mr. Halliday laughed. "I'm already chairman to collect games for paralytic children. Do you want to serve on the committee?"

"I'm pretty busy with my board," Mrs. McLane said, pleased. "But I'll certainly do all I can." They set a date to talk things over. Then Tony Perrelli joined them, nibbling one of Mrs. McLane's cookies.

"Never have I taste the equal," he exclaimed with Latin fervor. "Will you give me the recipe, to make some for myself?"

"Why, I'll be very glad to," Mrs. McLane bargained, "if you'll tell me how you make that wonderful salad dressing."

"Better!" Tony agreed. "I will come soon, on my vacation, and show you. I am chef for a beef restaurant," he explained, as the boys began to smile. "The singing is for the pleasure only."

The emcee was beckoning them upon the stage. And so it happened that, during an intermission, while Paul and Eddy hunted up the brunettes and Bert sat in the wings resting, that Captain Martyn came and took a chair beside him.

"Fought in the last war, myself!" He pulled back his cuff, exhibiting a bayonet scar.

"The Germans haven't grimed any, I guess," Bert answered grimly. But the captain shrugged both world wars into the past.

"A dirty business, best forgotten. What I came to say is, if you can get three more players, as good as you are, you're hired for our Rotary dinner dance next month, at Union pay."

Bert's fatigue lifted like vapor. He jumped to the captain's offer like an avid trout to bait. "I can get them easily. What date would you want us?"

"Two weeks from next Saturday," Captain Martyn handed Bert his card. "Phone me when you've got things all lined up."

HELD IN SLAYING

Chester, Pa., Dec. 30 (P)—George Whiteley, 36, was held in $1,500 bail today for the grand jury on charges of slaying Peter Morrison, 40, a rooming house resident.

County Detective Fred Jack said Whiteley, who formerly employed Morrison at a filling station, admitted firing the fatal shot as Morrison attempted to force his way in the Chester home of Whiteley.

ARGENTINE IS DUE FOR FULL REVIEW BY US

By NORMAN CARIGNAN

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The old ghost of U. S.-Argentine relations is stalking the pale green corridors of the State Department again.

In Washington, apparently for a full review of the question, is veteran career diplomat George Messersmith, U. S. Ambassador to Buenos Aires, bearing ideas on what should be done about Argentina.

His views reportedly are at variance with those of Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden, a burly 230-pounder who has charge of U. S. relations with Latin America.

The problem basically is the same that has rankled many a diplomat before and split the State Department wide open on a number of occasions.

Byrnes Is Referee

Crudely stated, the question is: "Should the United States forgive what it sees as the sins of its sister republics for the sake of maintaining unity?"

As applied to Argentina and her President, Gen. Juan Domingo Peron, Braden doesn't think so. Messersmith, according to his friends, has his own view.

Secretary of State Byrnes is slated to referee the dispute next week when he returns from his South Carolina vacation. Byrnes recently called Messersmith home for consultations.

Recent Developments

Briefly stated, the current argument springs from these developments:

The administration has repeatedly charged and sought to prove that Argentina collaborated with the Axis during the war and that Axis agents, firms and institutions flourished there.

Argentina subscribed to various inter-American resolutions containing pledges to wipe out all Nazi influences. The U. S. claims—and Argentina denies—that these promises have not been kept.

Last April Secretary Byrnes told Argentina the U. S. would include her in a proposed arms swapping arrangement and a mutual defense treaty provided she first got rid of Nazi influences.

Reports Come Back

Subsequently Ambassador Messersmith was sent to Buenos Aires to see whether Argentina came through with her end of the bargain. Shortly afterwards, reports began filtering back from Argentina to the effect that the ambassador had a different interpretation of Byrnes' April statement from that of Braden.

In letters to various friends in the U. S., Messersmith suggested that this country shouldn't be tougher on Argentina than when it comes to American countries when it comes to cleaning house of Nazis. He also insisted that unity of the hemisphere is paramount.

Braden has stood fast on his contention that Argentina should comply substantially because in most cases the Nazi agents within her borders are more dangerous than all the others in Latin America put together.

He has also made his belief clear that "whittling down" principles for the sake of unanimity is worthless.

Bernardo O'Higgins led the Chilean revolt from Spain and became the nation's first president.

Out Of The Past
From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO
Death of Judge McLean: The Harrisburg papers of Wednesday announced the painful intelligence of the sudden death, on that morning of the Hon. Wm. McLean, a resident of that borough, but a native of Adams county, and for many years a respectable citizen of Gettysburg and associate judge. He was engaged in purchasing marketing in the market-house, when he suddenly dropped down and was carried into the Washington hotel, where he soon expired without any signs of consciousness. The cause of his death was supposed to be an affection of the heart. He was in the 68th year of his age.

The mournful intelligence was promptly telegraphed to his son (Hon. Moses McLean) at Washington, who left immediately for Harrisburg, to pay the last tribute of filial affection to the remains of a revered parent.

Married: On Wednesday evening, the 23d inst., by the Rev. E. V. Gerhart, Mr. John Black, of Baltimore, to Miss Rebecca Troxel, of this borough.

On the 24th inst., by the Rev. J. C. Smith, Mr. Rufus C. Swope, to Miss Evelyn C. Forrest, all of Adams county.

On the 26th inst., by the Rev. Charles Witmer, Mr. John Flieger, of Abbotstown, to Miss Caroline, daughter of Joseph Kepner, Esq., of Berwick township.

On the 24th inst., by the Rev. John Ulrich, Mr. Jeremiah Taughnbaugh, of New Chester, to Miss Ann Maria Minich, of Menallen, both of this county.

Our Carrier will be around with an address on New Year's Morning — and hopes to be received with smiles and —

The first regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers called from Pittsburgh last week in steamboats. Capt. Samuel Kams, of Harrisburg, has been appointed Sutter to the regiment.

The President's message was printed at St. Louis in a little over four days after it was printed in Baltimore, although the roads were in a miserable condition.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Local Items — Messenger Appointed: Wm. Shillen has been appointed messenger to the court, in place of R. D. Armor, elected county treasurer.

Fatal Accident: We are informed that Mrs. Eliza Conover, of Mountjoy township, fell down the cellar steps at her residence on Monday of last week, fracturing her skull and dying shortly after. She was a member of the Taneytown Lutheran church and bore an excellent Christian character. She was in the 60th year of her age.

Cold: Wednesday and Thursday of last week were excessively cold. In Gettysburg the mercury sank to 7° below zero, being the coldest day we have had in some years. Telegrams from different parts of the country represent the cold spell as unusually severe.

Married: Cashman—Welcome — On the 19th inst., at the Lutheran parsonage, New Chester, by the Rev. J. E. Honeycutt, S. J. Cashman to Elvira Welcome, both of Tyrone township.

Black—Wright — On the 21st inst., at the residence of the bride's parents by Friends' ceremony, William H. Black, of Straban township, to Emille, daughter of Chas. S. and Hannah G. Wright, of Menallen township.

Eckert—Young — On the 21st inst., at the residence of the bride's father, Alex. Young, Esq., in Mountpleasant township, by Rev. Dr. Hay, Mr. Levi H. Eckert, of Conowago township, to Miss Rosalinda Young.

Heagy—Marks — At the Lutheran parsonage, Abbotstown, on the 19th inst., by the Rev. Dr. Hader, Mr. Samuel H. Heagy, of Reading township, to Miss Sarah Marks, of Huntingdon township.

Musselman—Musselman — On the 21st inst., by the Rev. E. S. Johnston, Mr. David R. Musselman to Miss Jennie Musselman, all of Hamilton township.

Quickel—Adams — On the 21st inst., in this place, by Rev. W. R. H. Deatrick, Mr. Jacob F. Quickel, of Butler township, to Miss Mary, daughter of Capt. William Adams, of Straban township, this county.

Snyder—Pfeffer — On the 21st inst., by Rev. P. Bergstresser, Mr. John H. Snyder, of Gettysburg, to Miss Kate E. Pfeffer, of Cumberland township.

Weaner—Lauver — On the 19th inst., by Rev. D. W. Wolf, Mr. Conrad Weaner to Miss Susan Lauver, both of Menallen township.

Christmas: On Sunday night, Christmas eve, special services were held in most of our churches. The exercises of the Reformed Sunday school, we understand, were interesting, the school being addressed by Prof. Baugher.

The Sunday school of Christ church also had very interesting exercises — addresses being delivered by Prof. Jacobs, Dr. Brown, Dr. Hay and Rev. Mr. Harpster.

Christmas day was given up to social amusements. We hear of many Christmas trees in private houses — some of them got up with much artistic taste. The young folks seemed especially to enjoy the day, radiant faces and pleasant interchange of greetings meeting one at every step.

Ordination of a Missionary: Mr. G. H. Harpster, the Theological seminary at this place, who designs going to India as a missionary, was ordained at a special meeting of the Lutheran Synod of Maryland in Baltimore last week. Among the ministers present were Rev. Mr. Unangst, fourteen years a missionary in India, Rev. Prof. Baugher, Rev. Dr. Morris, Rev. Mr. Butler, and Rev. Mr. Harpster will leave with Rev. Unangst for India on the 6th of January. He is about twenty-eight years of age and served during the late war as a captain in the Union army. . . . There were exhibited three fine sets of silver communion service, all presented by members of the Church of the Messiah in Philadelphia; one for the church at Guntur, India; one for Palnoud, Hindostan; and the other for Muhlenburg, Africa.

Today's Talk

It is now over a quarter of a century since I first came to the then little city of Miami, as a guest of my friend Donahay, cartoonist for the Cleveland Plain Dealer. There were less than twenty thousand people in the city at that time, and you could almost sit on one of the front porches that lined Biscayne Boulevard and throw your line into the bay, with anticipation in your mind! Each year, until the war years, after that first visit, I have returned. Miami became my second home. I once got a nice waterfront room on the river, near the old Royal Palm Hotel, for ten dollars a week! It's all changed now. Great buildings tower at that same spot today. A great and beautiful park now takes the place of much of the bay that used to be the water line in those days and the sky line of buildings now remind you of a miniature New York City.

Miami Beach was then but a small settlement. Only one hotel was located on Lincoln Road, and the old wooden bridge, named for Mr. Collins, whose vision for Miami Beach never wavered, was the only path to this now enchanted land. My friend Ed Wheelan, the cartoonist, and myself rented a small frame house for one season, near the Fisher Casino. Years later, when the great hurricane swept away so much of the construction at the beach, this little house still remained but today the very spot is lost, smothered by beautiful hotels and apartments that mass Collins Avenue.

I have witnessed the creation and growth of Miami Beach, almost from its first dream, and seen it rise from a swamp to a great and prosperous city and home reserve, so beautiful, with its flowered gardens and exquisite homes that no word can adequately express its creation but that one—magic! And now the mecca for endless numbers from all over the earth. All of this the culmination of one man's will, courage, and vision—Carl G. Fisher. The man is now gone—but the city that he envisioned, remains. To that man we who love Miami and Miami Beach owe an undying gratitude. Let us not forget that.

I think of Carl Fisher as I sit at my little noiseless typewriter in a lovely penthouse apartment bordering this ever-singing blue Atlantic Ocean, watching the poetic clouds by day and night, listening to the mocking birds, reading, writing these talks, and grateful to God for the privilege.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "A New Year Prayer"

Just Folks
THE PASSING YEAR
The year is old; a few more hours
And it is done with bickering powers.

With human failure and success,
And all man's innate selfishness.

A few more hours of life, and then
The Old Year leaves this world of men.

Forever more to be a date
Of human dealings, small or great.

A few more hours Old Year to run,
Then just the tale of all we've done.

The record brief, where will be seen
How strong and weak our age has been.

OPPORTUNITY TO BLAST RUSSIAN ACTIONS MISSED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, Dec. 30 (AP) — The United States passed up last week an opportunity to blast Russian conduct in China.

It chose instead to dismiss lightly an incident which only a little while ago might have been the subject of considerable diplomatic huffing and puffing.

The state department's attitude gives more than usual meaning to the forced departure of an American ship from Soviet-controlled Dairen 10 days ago.

Enough For Complaint
The ship went there to deliver mail and supplies to the American consul general. It had Soviet permission to enter and remain 48 hours. It took along an American business man and two newspapermen, and American authorities negotiated for permission for them to enter Dairen without prior clearance from Moscow.

This permission was refused. That alone might have been the subject of complaint by American officials here if they had wanted to let the world know that they do not like the way the Russians are running things in Dairen.

In the course of their unsuccessful negotiations the American authorities at Dairen kept the navy ship there more than the specified 48 hours.

Upheld Russians
A two-hour extension was granted by a Russian port officer. Toward the end of that time this officer reminded the American authorities they would have to leave in 20 minutes. Otherwise, he said, he could not be responsible for the consequences.

The state department could have protested that the Russian authorities had acted in an unfriendly manner by delivering a virtual ultimatum.

But what the department actually did was uphold the legal right of the Russians to order the ship out. A department spokesman said, in fact, that there was no ultimatum in any sense of the word.

He explained a subordinate Russian official was friendly enough to grant the two-hour extension and simply stated a fact in advising the ship he could not be further re-usable if it overlaid its time.

The department did say it hoped the Russians and Chinese eventually would make arrangements for the Chinese to take over administration of Dairen from the Soviet military authorities. But it disclaimed any American right to intervene in that situation.

None of this appears to signify much change in American policy toward Russia. Sec. Byrnes has defined that policy as one of firmness and patience. What the Dairen incident does seem to indicate is more emphasis on patience and less on firmness.

Diplomatic officials consider this to be in line with the improvement in Russo-American relations achieved in the New York meetings of the United Nations and Big Four Foreign Ministers Council.

Two Conclusions
Two other conclusions also may be drawn:

1. Washington authorities were in no rush to support the action of naval officials in the western Pacific in sending the American business man and two newsmen to Dairen without prior Moscow clearance.

2. There is no reason to believe that any local Soviet authorities such as those in Dairen can or will allow any Americans to move about in their zones until Moscow approves.

Christmas Berries Provide Plant Seed

When the Christmas holly wreath is ready for discard remove the pulp from the berries and sow the seeds in pots or pans filled with sandy garden soil to which a little acid peat-moss is added. You may space the seed quite close together because germination usually is not plentiful. Cover them about half an inch deep and sink the pots flush with the rim in a shaded garden spot.

Do not put them in a particularly sheltered spot because alternate freezing and thawing are needed for the seeds to come to life. When spring arrives look at them once a week to see what results you have had. They grow very slowly but may be transplanted to their permanent garden location when about three or four inches tall.

WINTER CARE OF CACTI
Give the cacti a sunny position if possible and during the winter allow the soil to become dry before watering. Spring is the best time to repot if necessary, using a porous soil mixture in a well drained container.

Starting Early Winter Chicks
Farmers and suburban persons who have adequate buildings and equipment usually find a small brood of chicks started in early January a profitable investment. And while this idea may at first glance seem somewhat risky, it offers inducements worth consideration. This year there are additional incentives.

Brooder and poultry housing equipment necessary to handle chicks, either hatched by incubator at home or bought as day-old chicks from hatcheries, is seldom used except for a few weeks in the spring. It stands idle the rest of the year. If such equipment can be employed to lengthen its season of usefulness, a greater profit can, of course, be obtained from the investment. Early winter chicks offer such an opportunity.

Another and important factor is found in bird health where chicks are started around the first of the year. If the brooder house and stove are suitable and are properly operated, little danger is incurred from low temperatures. In fact, it is probable that cold, windy, damp weather encountered by March and April chicks is a greater menace than low temperatures in early January. But more definite is the health factor in the insurance that most common chick diseases and parasites are dormant in winter. For example, intestinal worms depending on certain insects to complete their cycle are wholly absent from the early winter chick picture.

Again there are usually plentiful supplies of poultry feed available at this time of the year, both commercial and home grown feeds. And prices, from the absence of a highly competitive buyer's market, are likely to favor the poultry raiser.

Broilers raised from the early January brood are ready to gain advantage of the Easter market. This year there is, as suggested above, added incentives. These arise logically from our general meat situation.

High pork prices after government restrictions were removed from fettering the free operation of the law of supply and demand brought a maximum number of animals to market. The same factor applied to beef cattle, calves, sheep and lambs. As a result, expected and experienced, poultry meat prices declined through October and November. But an opposite trend is likely during March and April when broilers from the early winter chick brood are going to market.

There are prospects that pork and beef supplies will be greatly reduced by spring, with prices comparatively higher than they would have been had the flow of animals to slaughter over the last three months been normal. Thus, broilers will find a more favorable market in the spring.

And of course, pullets from early winter broods fit well into the farm plan. They come into production in midsummer when older hens are slumping into their annual molts and egg prices advance. Large-scale additions of pullets at that time of the year would not prove wise. But the ones added from the January chick program may furnish the flock reinforcements needed when the annual spring flush of laying begins to recede. The risk is not great; prospects for profit are favorable. And available time for proper care is less occupied than later when spring duties are crowding.

Growing Convallarias Indoors
For the benefit of those who do not recognize the floral name Convallaria, it is the old favorite among fragrant flowers, Lily-of-the-Valley. It is often over-looked in seed and nursery catalogues because it is listed under this botanical name. But it remains a useful and appreciated indoor blooming plant as well as one of the better and harder outdoor ornamentals.

It is difficult, as many growers know, to force Lily-of-the-Valley indoors from dormant roots taken up from the outdoor bed. In fact, this is not the proper method. Beginners are advised to buy "pips" from local florists and nurseries. These are grown especially for greenhouse and indoor forcing. They are actually dormant clumps with new shoots developed.

One of the better ways of using pips is to pot four to six in a six-inch pot, firming the soil well and watering to render the roots safely in contact with the soil. Then place the pot in a sunny window, as no dark-room treatment is necessary to stimulate root growth, as is needed with the Dutch bulbs. One of the few points on which errors can be made in handling Lily-of-the-Valley pips in this way is too deep covering. The tip should be barely covered after the pot soil settles.

If the pots enjoy a sunny window, preferably a southern exposure to gain the benefits of all-day sunshine, flowers should appear in about four to five weeks. Room temperature should be kept no higher than the lower 70's.

As plenty of moisture is needed to induce continued top growth it is wise to cover the soil surface with peat moss to prevent excessive evaporation. The room temperature may be maintained slightly higher before blooms open than after.

Few other flowers surpass this old favorite for fragrance. Here is one of the several reasons why Lily-of-the-Valley merits wider use in outdoor roles. Too, this is one of its claims for a place among indoor plants over winter.

Outdoor beds may be started in late fall from divisions from established clumps. Or, if transplanting is done on a mild day in late February, the transfer may be made at that time with a fair degree of success assured. Pips may be planted outdoors in late fall or early spring. The time factor is determined by the plant's habit of starting growth very early in the spring.

Lily-of-the-Valley thrives in neglected, out-of-way nooks where few other ornamentals will grow. Even on the north sides of walls or buildings in all-day shade or where it must compete with roots of shrubs and trees it usually does well. But of course, it reaches its perfection of beauty and fragrance when given a deeply mellow, well drained loam in a sunny border where it need not overcome the handicaps of shade and competition from other plants.

No lime, wood ashes or similar alkalinizing materials should be used in preparing the soil, as Lily-of-the-Valley demands or prefers an acid soil reaction. Bone meal worked through the soil before planting is beneficial in most cases.

Thinning and replanting is necessary every few years, else the beds will become matted with plants from the root spreading. It is from properly spaced plants that the finest blooms grow.

HOLIDAY PLANT REQUIRES CARE

Poinsettias, cyclamens, azaleas, Jerusalem cherries and other Christmas plants will retain their freshness and beauty longer if cared for with understanding. Try to approximate the ideal conditions under which they were grown. Dry air is injurious to the health of Christmas plants, so pans of water placed on the radiators will add needed moisture to the air. Fresh air is important to the plants, but drafts should be avoided.

Overwatering causes poinsettia leaves to turn yellow and drop. Never let the pot stand in a saucer of water. The plant needs sun. Do not place it too close to the window, however, as the roots are susceptible to cold, and if chilled the flowers will drop.

The azalea should be kept as cool as possible, but must get plenty of sunlight. As the plant has a mass of fibrous roots which draw up the water quickly, it needs regular watering.

The Jerusalem cherry requires a moist soil and atmosphere. It is susceptible to injury from coal or illuminating gas, which causes the leaves to turn yellow and drop.

Turn both Christmas and other house plants every few days to give them even distribution of light. Do not water them late in the afternoon, as the foliage should not be wet when night falls.

Garden Activities For Early January

To avert the ravages of the European corn borer, cornstalks should not be used as winter protection of shrubs. Make sure they are burned.

Fleshy or tuberous rooted plants, such as peonies, eremurus, dicentras, delphiniums, hellebores, etc., that are not planted deeply are safer if given a light covering of litter when hard freezing starts, especially if they are newly planted. This will prevent injury to the foliage in early spring.

COLD WEATHER AHEAD IN U.S.

(By The Associated Press)

The nation could look forward today to a continued influx of Siberian air with the U. S. Weather Bureau's promise that it would be the better part of a week before sub zero temperatures moderate appreciably.

"There's a lot of weather around," the forecasters said. "It's settling down pretty well all over the country and behind it is a lot more of the same air—with temperatures in parts of Canada as low as 35 and 40 below zero.

"There'll be some moderation in about two days, but even so, it will remain below normal most of this week."

They explained the storm area originated in Siberia, and moved down the North Alaska route, the Yukon Valley and due south through the Dakotas to Texas. Along about the Ohio Valley it bumped into the warm Gulf air and pushed underneath. The moisture in this Gulf air just naturally fell through, which accounts for the snow, sleet, and bad conditions.

New Year's Eve Party

Next Sunday at the Sunday school service, promotion will be held in the Children's division. Those promoted out of the Children's division into the Junior division will be presented with Bibles at the 10:30 a.m. service. Service preparatory to Holy Communion will also be held at this time. Choir rehearsal will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The Conistory and the Women's Guild will meet Thursday at 7:30 o'clock, instead of Wednesday, New Year's Day.

Preparatory service and Holy Communion will be held Sunday at 9 a.m. in St. Luke's Reformed church, it has been announced by Rev. John C. Brumbach, pastor.

The Ocker-Snyder Post No. 321, American Legion, Littlestown, will hold a New Year's party Tuesday night, starting at 8 p.m. There will be dancing and other entertainment, and turkey sandwiches and other refreshments. The affair will be in charge of the Social Committee, composed of Clarence J. Krichen, Jr. and George Hornberger; and the house committee, consisting of Wilbur E. Mackley, James Fager, Charles B. Mummert, Paul Wolff, and Wayne C. Arnold.

The funeral of Mrs. John W. Miller, Straban township, was held Saturday afternoon from the J. W. Little and Son Funeral home, Littlestown. The pallbearers were five sons and a son-in-law: Lloyd E. Herbert H. Melvin G. Glenn T. and Eugene H. Miller; and Lawrence W. Guise. Rev. Nevin Frantz, Arendtville, and Rev. H. W. Starnal, Biglerville, officiated. Burial was made in Bender's church cemetery.

DANCE ON THE DESERT

Chapter 4

Whatever Bert expected, the Marylanders' affair in the old-fashioned, plain-decked hotel ballroom certainly wasn't it. All ages, professions and nationalities seemed represented. It all seemed like a small-town "society" on an extravaganza scale.

Paul nudged his brother Bert, as the gray-haired master-of-ceremonies in a youthful Norfolk jacket, wise-cracked through a megaphone. "Let's start our community sing with Let Me Call You Sweetheart—and let's put some heart into it, folks!"

"Right out of the corncrib, brother," Paul whispered. "No mistake." "Corn's healthy," Bert grinned back.

The well-dressed man in front of them turned around and smiled approvingly. He smiled, also, at Bert's mother, who looked very handsome in an ashen-of-roses lace dress, and feather hair ornaments.

The club, Ellen had said, began as a neighborhood group collecting clothes for refugees, but had rapidly expanded. It had given blood, sold war bonds, even bought a Red Cross ambulance. Proudly, the emcee reported, now, that it had filled its quota of five hundred used phonograph records for army and navy hospitals.

"You win, Bert," Paul admitted sportingly. "This brand of corn's okay!"

"And now, folks," the dapper emcee shouted, "our president, Captain Martyn, is going to introduce his distinguished cousin, who is visiting here from Terre Haute, Indiana."

The man in front looked surprised, but let himself be taken to the stage by a florid gentleman who looked like Wendell Wilkie, and was ceremoniously presented as "Mr. Curtis Halliday, a Lion and an Elk, and the vice-president of the Terre Haute Trust Company. My cousin is also the winner," the captain slyly stated, "of several very beautiful loving cups for waltzing."

The ladies uttered, Mr. Halliday said a few gracious words, then looked a little startled, as the pianist began to play "Back Home in Indiana" for his benefit, and the crowd gaily took it up.

The program, provided by friends and members, got under way. And how very different from the U.S.O. shows the boys were used to! Sixteen-age tap dancers in Irish costumes, a juggler, and a chubby child who sang "Gay Nineties" favorites in a trailing velvet gown. Then the emcee called upon the boys.

"And now, friends, the three sons of our own Lola McLane, just back from overseas, are going to give us a little music."

The boys stood up, bowed self-consciously, and went up on the stage, where Paul's drums, hung with gadgets for sound effects, and Bert's saxophone, had already been carried. And, with Eddy at the piano, they contributed some exciting swing, that brought down the house. They gave the crowd an encore, then were followed on the bill by the darkly handsome Tony Perrelli, whose flashing smile and Caruso-like tenor, all but laid the ladies in the aisle. Then the chairs were pushed back to the walls, and tables loaded with refreshments were rolled in.

Eileen came over with two pretty brunettes in pastel evening dresses—Thelma Reeves and Helene Woods. Thelma beamed on Paul.

"Your music was wonderful! Go- ing to play again, for dancing?"

Paul looked at his brothers, smiled engagingly. "Might, if we were sweetly asked to."

Captain Martyn bustled over, shaking hands and thanking them. "They'd play again for dancing," Thelma said naively. "If you asked them sweetly, Captain." Everybody laughed.

"Splendid! Very generous. I'm sure!" The captain presented his cousin, then hurried to inform the emcee.

Mr. Halliday praised the club, the program, the Southern California climate. "After two weeks of summer in January, Captain Martyn has persuaded me to stay till spring."

"And join our club, we hope," Mrs. McLane said eagerly.

Mr. Halliday laughed. "I'm already chairman to collect games for paralytic children. Do you want to serve on the committee?"

"I'm pretty busy with my board- ing," Mrs. McLane said, pleased. "I'll certainly do all I can." They set a date to talk things over. Then Tony Perrelli joined them, nibbling one of Mrs. McLane's cookies.

"Never have I taste the equal," he exclaimed with Latin fervor. "Will you give me the recipe, to make some for myself?"

"Why, I'll be very glad to," Mrs. McLane bargained. "If you'll tell me how you make that wonderful salad dressing."

"Better!" Tony agreed. "I will come soon, on my vacation, and show you. I am chief for a beef restaurant," he explained, as the boys began to smile. "The singing is for the pleasure only."

The emcee was beckoning them upon the stage. And so it happened that, during an intermission, while Paul and Eddy hunted up the brunettes and Bert sat in the wings resting, that Captain Martyn came and took a chair beside him.

"Fought in the last war, myself!" He pulled back his cuff, exhibiting a bayonet scar.

"The Germans haven't changed any, I guess," Bert answered grimly. But the captain shrugged both world wars into the past.

"A dirty business, best forgotten. What I came to say is, if you can get three more players, as good as you are, you're hired for our Rotarian dinner dance next month, at Union pay."

Bert's fatigue lifted like vapor. He jumped to the captain's offer like an avid trout to bait. "I can get them easily. What date would you want us?"

"Two weeks from next Saturday," Captain Martyn handed Bert his card. "Phone me when you've got things all lined up."

HELD IN SLAYING

Chester, Pa., Dec. 30 (AP)—George Whiteley, 36, was held in $1,500 bail today for the grand jury on charges of slaying Peter Morrison, 40, a rooming house resident.

County Detective Fred Jack said Whiteley, who formerly employed Morrison at a filling station, admitted firing the fatal shot as Morrison attempted to force his way in the Chester home of Whiteley.

ARGENTINE IS DUE FOR FULL REVIEW BY US

By NORMAN CARIGNAN
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The old ghost of U. S.-Argentine relations is stalking the pale green corridors of the State Department again.

In Washington, apparently for a full review of the question, is veteran career diplomat George Messersmith, U. S. Ambassador to Buenos Aires, bearing ideas on what should be done about Argentina.

His views reportedly are at variance with those of Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden, a burly 230-pounder who has charge of U. S. relations with Latin America.

The problem basically is the same that has rankled many a diplomat before and split the State Department wide open on a number of occasions.

Byrnes Is Referee

Crudely stated, the question is: "Should the United States forgive what it sees as the sins of its sister republics for the sake of maintaining unity?"

As applied to Argentina and her President, Gen. Juan Domingo Peron, Braden doesn't think so. Messersmith, according to his friends, has his own views.

Secretary of State Byrnes is slated to referee the dispute next week when he returns from his South Carolina vacation. Byrnes recently called Messersmith home for consultations.

Briefly stated, the current argument springs from these developments:

The administration has repeatedly charged and sought to prove that Argentina collaborated with the Axis during the war and that Axis agents, firms and institutions flourished there.

Argentina subscribed to various inter-American resolutions containing pledges to wipe out all Nazi influences. The U. S. claims—and Argentina denies—that these promises have not been kept.

Last April Secretary Byrnes told Argentina the U. S. would include her in a proposed arms swapping arrangement and a mutual defense treaty provided she first got rid of Nazi influences.

Reports Come Back

Subsequently Ambassador Messersmith was sent to Buenos Aires to see whether Argentina came through with her end of the bargain. Shortly afterwards, reports began filtering back from Argentina to the effect that the ambassador had a different interpretation of Byrnes' April statement from that of Braden.

In letters to various friends in the U. S., Messersmith suggested that this country shouldn't be tougher on Argentina than on other Latin American countries when it comes to cleaning house of Nazis. He also insisted that unity of the hemisphere is paramount.

Braden has stood fast on his contention that Argentina should comply substantially because in most cases the Nazi agents within her borders are more dangerous than all the others in Latin America put together.

He has also made his belief clear that "whittling down" principles for the sake of unanimity is worthless.

Bernardo O'Higgins led the Chilean revolt from Spain and became the nation's first president.

3 FLOGGINGS
STIR HOLY LAND

Jerusalem, Dec. 30 (P)—The British military announced today that all Jewish communities along the Palestine coast had been placed out of bounds to the 30,000 British troops on duty in the area, as authorities pressed a search for the kidnappers who abducted a British major and three sergeants last night and gave each 18 lashes in what was described as a retaliatory move.

A military source predicted that authorities, fearing British troops might seek vengeance for the floggings, would keep the ruling in force at least until after New Year's Eve. The provost marshal's office said that "feeling is running high" in the military camps.

Jewish agency sources expressed regret for the floggings.

Meanwhile the British ship, Ocean Vigour, arrived in Haifa harbor, bringing 750 Jewish refugees who were deported to Cyprus when they originally arrived here without immigration certificates.

Search for the perpetrators of last night's floggings continued, with British authorities and Palestine police participating in the manhunt.

Authorities said that the major was whisked away by five armed men from the lounge of the Hotel Metropoli in Nathanya, 40 miles north of Tel Aviv, where he was sitting with his wife. He was said to have been blindfolded, tied to a rack and beaten with a cane.

INVESTIGATE EIRE CRASH

Shannon Airport, Eire, Dec. 30 (P)—U. S. Government investigators and TWA officials gathered here today to open an inquiry into the disastrous crash of the Trans-World Airline Constellation Star of Cairo in which 12 persons were killed and 11 injured Saturday.

At Ennis, County Clare, an inquest into the deaths was adjourned today until January 28, when injured members of the crew are expected to be able to testify.

Michael Donnellan, a young farm hand who lives across a small creek from the island, said:

"I was called by the boss about 2:15 a.m. I had just got out of bed when I heard three loud reports like a shotgun. When I dressed and went out of the house I saw a straight line of fire from the burning plane on the island."

"The next thing I heard was a baby screaming (the four-months old son of Mrs. Edith Delaby Waterbury, French GI bride). I heard people crying and shouting for help."

TWA officials reported last night that two of the survivors, Capt. Herbert Tansey, the pilot, and Dudley Hill, a crew member, had taken a turn for the worse. Tansey's condition was described as "very critical." Officials said the nine other survivors spent "a comfortable night."

Pretty blonde Vina Ferguson, 25-year-old hostess, lauded by rescuers as the "heroine" of the disaster, described the crash as "just one horrible bump and a little jiggling around."

ACCIDENT

Santa Fe, N. M., (P)—A call that there has been an accident brought police on the double to the Changitos club, teen-age hangout.

With long poles patrolmen Manuel Moya and Pete Montoya removed a dead skunk.

Snow Hampering
Air Crash Probe

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 30 (P)—An investigation of the crash of an American air lines plane in which two crew members were killed and 19 other persons injured continued today despite a heavy snow which hampered tent-housed probes.

The Buffalo-to-Chicago plane crash-landed in International Garden killing the pilot Fred M. Hamm, Jr., Chicago and the co-pilot, Harmon E. Ring, Muscatine, Iowa, after they had radioed the Chicago operations office the plane developed motor trouble.

Representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the airline company set up a tent near the wreckage to investigate the accident.

Herbert Shebat, of Chicago, representing the CAB, said a formal hearing would be held in about a week at Chicago when evidence obtained here would be heard. He said a formal report on the accident would be issued later at Washington.

BUILDING COST TO INCREASE IN COMING YEAR

By STERLING F. GREEN
(Substituting For James Marlow)

Washington, Dec. 30 (P)—What will it cost to build a new house in 1947? More, or course.

Bolled down, these are the views of some government and industry officials here:

A disproportionately large number of $12,000 to $15,000 houses will be started in the next few months. But not all building will be concentrated in the higher-price class. And costs are likely to start coming down sometime in the year.

Materials Up 20.8 Per Cent

These are just opinions because no official estimate exists. The Federal housing administration is assembling figures now, and expects to have something fairly authoritative in a week or two.

Meanwhile, here are some of the factors which put a big question-mark over the future of housing costs.

The average price of building materials has risen 20.8 per cent in the last six months. Since Nov. 9 alone the general rise has been 7.9 per cent, and lumber has soared nearly 15 per cent.

Larger Houses Ahead

Those are factory prices. In other words, they don't include the increased mark-up which is tacked on by dealers and contractors. And materials amount to 45 per cent of the total cost of a house, including lot. Labor costs represent 30 per cent of the total, and they have been rising too.

Here's another invitation to higher costs: The new limit of 1,500 square feet permits the construction of homes about 50 per cent larger than could be built in most cities under the $10,000 limit.

The bigger the house, the bigger the builder's profit. Therefore many builders will go in for higher-cost dwellings as long as a market exists.

And the market is likely to exist for quite a while.

Dr. Hetzel Marks
20th Anniversary

State College, Pa., Dec. 30 (P)—One of Pennsylvania's most urgent problems is training more men and women capable of assuming leadership, Dr. Ralph Hetzel declared today as he marked his 20th year as president of the Pennsylvania State college.

Dr. Hetzel said "our own state, if it is to keep pace economically and industrially with others, must have an educational agency whose major objective is service to the people of the Commonwealth and their interests."

Former head of the University of New Hampshire before becoming Penn State's president, Dr. Hetzel is credited with founding the plan whereby approximately 3,000 Penn State freshmen were "farmed out" this year to State Teachers college and other cooperating institutions.

Assembly Ball Is Renewed In Phila.

Philadelphia, Dec. 30 (P)—The Quaker city's leading socialites, wearing brilliant gowns and jewels, crowded into the Bellevue Stratford hotel Friday night for the glittering Assembly Ball, the first since 1940.

More than 1,700 guests, representing the top strata of Philadelphia society, renewed a dance begun 198 years ago. It was ordered then that assemblies be held "every Thursday night from the first Thursday in January, 1748, to the first day of May in every year, and begin precisely at six in the evening and not by any means to exceed twelve of the same night."

Now the hours are reversed. The assembly start shortly before midnight and lasts till early morning. Supper is served at 1 a. m.

Only debutantes and their mothers who represent the oldest and most aristocratic families of Philadelphia are invited.

Strive To Quell
GOP Insurrection

Washington, Dec. 30 (P)—Senators Vandenberg and Taft were reported ready to appeal personally to their colleagues to put down a threatened GOP insurrection over the organization of the 80th Congress which convenes Friday.

The Michigan and Ohio senators, each slated for dual roles in the new Senate leadership, indicated they would fight to the last ditch a move headed by Senator Reed of Kansas to bar Senator White of Maine from becoming both floor leader and chairman of the new Commerce committee.

Senator Butler (R-Neb.), predicted to a reporter that a firm stand by either or both of the leaders would "crumble" any effort to upset the working assignments laid out in advance by White's committee on committees.

GRANDMA AT 30

Kansas City, Dec. 30 (P)—Mrs. Claude Wilbur Norris was a grandmother today at the age of 30. Her 16-year-old daughter, Mrs. Armon D. Hartlieb, gave birth to a 6-pound, 13-ounce child yesterday. The baby, a girl, named Donna Marie. Mrs. Norris was married at 13.

KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

Lafayette, Pa., Dec. 30 (P)—Mrs. Katherine Iscrupt Lalli, 29, of Ligonier, was killed yesterday in the crash of a truck in which she was riding on Route 271 near Waterford. Police said the truck skidded off the road.

The olive tree grows slowly and seldom reaches a height of more than thirty feet.

Baruch Gets Award

Pittsburgh, Dec. 30 (P)—The national annual service award of Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity went to Bernard Baruch, economist, Presidential advisor and atomic control commissioner, last night at opening sessions of the group's convention here. The award is made annually for outstanding contributions to American life.
